Considering I racked up over 17 hours of gameplay with Freecell Quest I think it's safe to say that I enjoyed it. However, those hours were weeks ago and I've barely touched the game since. This is due to the fact that at around the halfway point it suddenly stops being rewarding and every one of the many, many levels feels like such a slog.

I only managed to unlock 13 of the 36 trophies/achievements, the rest of which would require hundreds of hours to win. I'm sorry, I just don't have that amount of time. The upgrade system is kinda pointless as the levels cause more damage to you the further you progress, so the increased health bar makes no difference. The RPG element is nice, but more could have been done with it. I do like how they've basically turned a free Microsoft game into an adventure, and some the music here is really cool. They should release a digital soundtrack album. I've contacted the devs about this, but they never responded.

A negative review of Freecell Quest is not justified. I found it very addictive and crafted two badges from the trading cards, but, as I said, it just stops being fun halfway through. Most certainly worth picking up in a sale if you see it, but there's more rewarding card games out there.. This is a great game! I've been playing on a keyboard and it took a little getting used to before finally serving my first meal. After that, I was hooked and I will now get some controllers so that I can play with my wife - would also like to try with 4 players too. I would suggest to the developer to have an easier mode for keyboard players. Again, a fantastic game.. In all reality its not that good .. graphics are poor and the game play is meh. amazing game. Graphics are a little above average. in total its an awsoe game that i cant stop playing!. All my planes now have streamers and a red scarf!

Also i can now use a pistol to shoot down enemy planes. 88/10. This game is a national treasure and a solid dank meme. 10/10. great little physics puzzle game

This game is just wonderful, simple, and mesmerizing. The combination of music and gameplay makes the game very calming and yet challenging.. It's a nice casual point'n'click puzzle game. Well worth the price I paid for it. Does not a lot of fine tuning, though..

>buys this game at 11 am in the morning

>plays for an hour or so >mom tells me to go to bed early because i have to wake up at 6 the next day for practice

>checks watch

>9 pm

> o h. Lightweight but with enough strategy to stay engaging. Like an arcade version of Mount and Blade. Fun little game!.

Fascinating point 'n click period piece with an atypical setting and art style that holds up well through the ages. This is the stuff most adventures games dream of. I need more wine.
